The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Figures 1 and 2 should be designated by a legend such as --Prior Art-- because only that which is old is illustrated. See MPEP § 608.02(g). Corrected drawings in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The replacement sheet(s) should be labeled "Replacement Sheet" in the page header (as per 37 CFR 1.121(d)) so as not to obstruct any portion of the drawing figures. If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 8-12, 14 and 16-19 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Murano et al. (JP 54-000963 A). Simply stated applicant did not invent the successive approximation approach to analog-to-digital conversion in general.

Murano discloses an ADC with adjustment means (15, 16; fig. 2) which set the comparison signal to intermediate position between the upper (lower) level and 0 level of the former comparison voltage in a feedback approach. A multiple bit register appears to be disclosed as element 18. Murano does not disclose a processor and battery input; however, incorporation of analog-to-digital converters to monitor assundry analog signal inputs such as temperature or voltage level, in processor systems and the provision of such with battery power is well known because of the recognized need to provide portable appliances with portable power source.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 10-12, 14, 16 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by Hellerman (US 4,769,288). As the reference voltage is passed forward from stage to stage either the upper or lower is replaced by half of the prior comparison voltage dependent upon the comparator output which controls the switches. The input is compared successively against these references and the bits of the digital result are latched.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Buurma discloses in column 1 lines 25+, a succinct description of the claimed method. Prost et al. (US 4,749,984) discloses an analog-to-digital converter system that adjusts the upper and lower voltages applied to the resistor ladder responsive to successive comparison cycles. Tanitsu (JP 06-120829 A) discloses an ADC that determines in which half of the ADC range the input lies and adjusts the reference voltage applied to the DAC accordingly.

Claims 3-7, 13, 15, and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
